CHAPTER ONE

The Property Management Business — Recurring Income From Every Unit You Manage

You collect 8-12% of every rent payment. Every month. Without owning a single property.

Property management is one of the purest recurring income businesses available to an experienced Caribbean professional. You charge 8-12% of monthly rent for managing each unit — handling tenant relations, maintenance coordination, rent collection, lease renewals, and owner reporting. You own nothing. You risk nothing. You collect a percentage of income that the property generates regardless of whether you are working that day or not. With 150 units under management at an average rent of $1,500, your monthly management fee income is $18,000-$27,000 — recurring, predictable, and growing with every unit you add.

1

Licensing requirements

Most US states require a real estate broker license to manage properties for third-party owners for compensation. Some states (including Kansas, Massachusetts, and several others) do not require a license for property managers. Check your specific state requirements at your state's real estate commission website. In states that require a license, a broker license typically requires: active real estate salesperson license for 2+ years, additional broker education (60–90 hours), broker examination, and ongoing continuing education.

What property management fees cover

Leasing fee (one-time per new tenant): 50–100% of first month's rent · Monthly management fee: 8–12% of collected rent · Lease renewal fee: $100–$300 per renewal · Maintenance coordination fee: 10–15% markup on vendor invoices · Eviction coordination fee: $200–$500 · Vacancy management: Included in monthly fee · Annual portfolio review: Included or billed separately at $100–$200

CHAPTER TWO

Your Caribbean Community Client Base — Caribbean Landlords First

Caribbean families invest in real estate at higher rates than almost any other diaspora community. They need you.

Caribbean families in the diaspora have a documented cultural relationship with property ownership. First-generation Caribbean immigrants who bought homes in the 1970s, 1980s, and 1990s now own multi-unit properties — duplexes, triplexes, small apartment buildings — that they have been self-managing for decades. They are tired. The rent collection, the maintenance calls at 11pm, the tenant disputes, the accounting — none of it is what they imagined property ownership would be. You are the Caribbean professional they have been waiting for.

Finding Caribbean landlord clients

Post in Caribbean community Facebook groups: 'Are you a Caribbean property owner tired of self-managing your rental units? Caribbean Property Management — professional management from a Caribbean professional who understands our community. First month management fee waived.' One post in a Caribbean community group of 5,000 members generates 10–20 serious inquiries. Caribbean landlords trust a Caribbean property manager the way they trust a Caribbean doctor — implicitly and immediately.

The tenant side — filling vacancies with Caribbean community tenants

Caribbean property management has a unique advantage on the tenant side too. Caribbean landlords prefer Caribbean tenants — shared cultural values around home care, respect for property, and community accountability. Your property management company is positioned to match Caribbean landlords with Caribbean tenants from your community network. That matching service is worth the management fee before the first maintenance call.

CHAPTER THREE

Scaling to 150+ Units and Remote OS Pro Management

The first 10 units prove the system. The next 140 units prove the business.

Property management scales through systems, not through additional hours. The first 10 units under management require significant setup — onboarding clients, establishing maintenance vendor networks, implementing rent collection systems. The next 140 units operate largely on the same systems with minimal additional time. Remote OS Pro automates the administrative work that would otherwise limit your growth.

Building your maintenance vendor network

A property management company is only as good as its maintenance vendors. Build a network of trusted Caribbean vendors for every trade — plumbing, electrical, HVAC, cleaning, landscaping, pest control. These vendors become your referral partners. Your pest control vendor refers their property owner clients to you for management. You refer your managed property owners to them for pest control. A circular Caribbean professional network that feeds every business in it.

2

The 150-unit milestone and what it means financially

150 units at $1,500 average rent at 10% management fee = $22,500/month in management fees alone. Annual leasing fees on 20% annual turnover (30 units) at $750 average = $22,500/year additional. Annual maintenance coordination markup (10% on $150,000 in annual maintenance): $15,000/year. Total year three revenue: $312,000 from management fees, leasing fees, and maintenance coordination. This is a business that compounds — every unit you add increases recurring monthly income permanently.

YOUR BUSINESS WEBSITE — PERSONAL NOTE

A professional property management website — showing your managed portfolio, tenant portal, owner reporting dashboard, and a property owner inquiry form — converts Caribbean landlords who are tired of self-managing into long-term managed clients before you meet them in person. I found it significantly easier to use Lovable — an AI site builder where you describe what you want and it builds a professional site in minutes. No coding. Check it out.
