TRIED AND TESTED — REAL NUMBERS

Colin, a 26-year-old with no finance background, cleared $231,000 in his first full year as a credit card rewards consultant — on roughly $100/month in software costs. This is not a theory. It is a documented business model with a clear path to entry that requires a weekend of learning and one honest conversation with a business owner who is already leaving money on the table. This guide gives you the exact system — adapted for the Caribbean professional and the Caribbean business community.

CHAPTER ONE

The Business Nobody Is Talking About

$231,000 in year one. $100/month in costs. Nobody saw it coming.

Think about your average Caribbean contractor spending $40,000 a month on materials, fuel, and equipment. He signed up for the card his bank handed him years ago and has never once thought about it since. He is probably earning 1% back — maybe $400 a month in rewards on $40,000 in spending. With the right card strategy, he could be earning 2.5% to 3% on that same spend. That is the difference between $400 and $1,200 in monthly rewards — $9,600 more per year, from money he was already spending.

A credit card rewards consultant sits down with that contractor, looks at what he is already spending, and rebuilds his card strategy so he stops leaving that money on the table. The consultant charges $875 for the session. The contractor makes the fee back in weeks. Almost nobody says no to that framing — and almost nobody is offering this service in the Caribbean business community right now.

First full year revenue — documented real case

~$100/month in software costs · No office · No employees · No ads run

Why This Gap Exists

Points and rewards content exists everywhere online — but it is written for travel hackers, frequent flyers, and hobbyists chasing first-class upgrades.

Nobody is sitting down with the Caribbean restaurant owner, the Caribbean cleaning company, or the Caribbean event planner and walking them through a business card strategy built around their actual spending. That gap is where this business lives.

What you do

Analyze a business owner's current card setup, identify the gap between what they earn and what they could earn, and build a strategy that closes it. One session. One flat fee. They make the fee back in weeks.

What you do not do

You do not sell credit cards. You do not work for a bank. You do not manage their finances. You are an independent consultant — your only product is the strategy session. Clean, simple, no conflicts.

THE MYCARDAUDIT.COM CONNECTION

The same insight behind this business model is what powers mycardaudit.com — an AI-powered credit card audit tool built specifically for business owners. When you serve Caribbean business clients as a rewards consultant, mycardaudit.com becomes your proof of expertise and your digital storefront. The consultant and the tool work together — one as a high-touch personal service, one as a scalable digital product.

CARIBBEAN EARNER PRINCIPLE

The Cayman Islands built a global financial services industry by serving clients other institutions overlooked. Caribbean business owners are the overlooked client in the rewards consulting space. You are the institution that serves them.

CHAPTER TWO

Getting Smart Enough to Start

One weekend. The right resources. A bar lower than you think.

You do not need a finance degree. You do not need to have visited 60 countries or redeemed points through every airline partner. You need to know more than your clients — and that bar is genuinely low. Most business owners who have been running their card strategy on autopilot for five years know almost nothing about how rewards optimization works. A weekend of focused reading puts you ahead of 99% of the people you will ever pitch.

Your Learning Stack — Free, Available This Weekend

START HERE — WEEKEND READING LIST

- The Daily Drop — free beginner course on their website. The single best starting point. Covers how points systems work, what cards earn what, and how to build a basic optimization strategy from scratch.
- The Points Guy (thepointsguy.com) — years of deep strategy, card comparisons, and redemption guides. Read the business card section specifically. Treat it like a textbook, not a blog.
- One Mile at a Time (onemileatatime.com) — advanced redemption strategy and card reviews. Read alongside The Points Guy for a complete picture.
- Seats.aero — searches 25 airline programs at once for available award space. This is the tool Colin uses daily for his trip research service. Practice using it before you have a single client.

Claude or ChatGPT — prompt with specific scenarios: "A Caribbean restaurant spending $25,000/month on food supplies, payroll, and utilities — what card strategy would maximize their rewards?" Run 20 of these scenarios over a weekend. You will learn more in two days than most people do in two years.

The Knowledge Bar You Actually Need to Clear

1 Understand the main business card categories

Cash back cards, travel rewards cards, flexible points cards (Amex Membership Rewards, Chase Ultimate Rewards, Capital One Venture). Know which categories — office supplies, dining, advertising, travel — earn the most points on which cards. This is the core of 80% of your strategy work.

2 Understand sign-up bonuses

Most premium business cards offer 100,000–200,000 point bonuses after meeting a spend threshold in the first 90 days. For a business owner already spending $20,000/month, hitting a $15,000 threshold in 90 days costs them nothing extra. That bonus alone can be worth $1,500–$3,000 in travel or cash. That is your first pitch point.

3 Know the top 5 business cards cold

Amex Business Platinum, Chase Ink Business Preferred, Capital One Venture X Business, Amex Blue Business Plus, Bank of America Business Unlimited. Know their earn rates, annual fees, and best use cases. These five cards cover the majority of client recommendations you will ever make.

COLIN'S SELF-TRAINING METHOD

Colin spent five hours researching a Turkish Airlines deal for a flight to Hawaii, got all the way to the booking screen, and never pulled the trigger. Then he posted what he found and what he learned on LinkedIn. It hit 100,000 impressions with under 1,000 followers. That one post sustained his early business for months. You do not need clients to build credibility. You need to do the work publicly.

CARIBBEAN EARNER PRINCIPLE

Barbados built the Caribbean's highest literacy rate through a culture that treated education as the foundation of everything else. The knowledge you need for this business is free and available this weekend. The only variable is whether you go get it.

CHAPTER THREE

Your Two Services and What to Charge

Business consulting. Trip research. Both build from the same knowledge.

This business has two clean service offerings. Start with the consulting package — it is where the real money is and it builds your knowledge faster than anything else. Add trip research once you have five clients under your belt and the referrals start coming in on their own.

Service One — Business Card Strategy Consulting

WHAT THE SESSION LOOKS LIKE – START TO FINISH
Discovery call (15–20 min)	Free – qualify the client
Research (1–2 hrs)	Review their spend categories
Strategy session (75 min)	Build full card strategy together
Follow-up email	Full strategy written out clearly
Trip booking help	Included when they're ready to redeem
Your fee	$875 flat · One time

The Client Math That Makes $875 Easy to Say Yes To

CARIBBEAN CONTRACTOR – $40,000/MONTH CARD SPEND
Current setup — 1% cashback card	$400/month in rewards

Optimized setup — 2.5% on key categories	$1,000/month in rewards
Monthly improvement	+$600/month
Your fee paid back in	Under 6 weeks

Service Two — Trip Research and Booking

A client has 200,000 Amex points and wants to take their family to Barbados for Christmas. They have no idea how to redeem them. They come to you, tell you where they want to go and how many points they have. You find the best redemption deal and help them book it. Flat fee — $300 to $500 — once it is done.

Why clients pay this easily

A Caribbean family with 200,000 points and no idea how to use them is sitting on $2,000–$4,000 in travel value they cannot access. You unlock it for $400. That math is undeniable.

How to scale this service

Colin has two part-time contractors handling his trip research now — 35 active trips being managed simultaneously. You hire when volume demands it. The playbook is replicable.

CARIBBEAN EARNER PRINCIPLE

Jamaica's motto — Out of Many, One People — was built on the understanding that strength comes from serving the community you know. Your Caribbean clients are not just paying you for strategy. They are paying you to help them get back to the islands they love — on points they already earned.

CHAPTER FOUR

Your Best Clients — Caribbean Business Owners First

The warmest market. The highest need. The easiest first conversation.

Your ideal client is any business owner spending at least $20,000 per month on credit cards who has never once thought about their rewards strategy. Construction companies, medical practices, restaurants, cleaning companies, trades businesses, event planners. People with serious spend and zero optimization. But within that universe, the Caribbean business owner in your community is your fastest, warmest path to your first five clients.

Why Caribbean Business Owners Are Your Perfect Starting Point

Caribbean-owned businesses in diaspora cities run on community trust and word of mouth. They are less likely to have professional advisors. They are more likely to be using whatever card their bank offered them when they opened their business account. And when another Caribbean professional approaches them with genuine expertise and community connection — not a generic sales pitch — the conversation starts from a completely different place.

Caribbean restaurants and catering companies

High monthly spend on food supplies, equipment, and payroll. The restaurant owner spending $30,000/month on supplies on a 1% cashback card is leaving $600/month on the table. They are in your community. You likely eat their food. That is your opening.

Caribbean contractors and tradespeople

Materials, equipment rentals, subcontractor payments — these businesses move serious money through cards every month. A Caribbean contractor in New York or London spending $50,000/month on materials has never had anyone sit down and show them what they could earn on that spend. You are the first.

Caribbean cleaning companies

Supplies, equipment, vehicle expenses, insurance. Recurring monthly spend that is predictable and optimizable. Caribbean cleaning companies in diaspora cities are often second-generation businesses — the owner is sophisticated enough to understand the value immediately once you show them the math.

Caribbean event planners and party suppliers

Venue deposits, catering, décor, equipment rentals — event planners run large spend through cards seasonally. During peak Caribbean celebration seasons, the monthly volumes are substantial. And they are constantly booking flights to the islands for site visits and personal travel — the trip research service sells itself here.

WHO TO AVOID — COLIN SAID IT HIMSELF

Avoid the tech founder crowd. They already think they know everything and they are not that fun to work with. Your best clients are the people who are too busy running their business to think about their card strategy — not the people who have already spent 10 hours reading The Points Guy.

Busy, high-spending, community-trusted business owners. That is your client.

CARIBBEAN EARNER PRINCIPLE

Antigua's Sailing Week became a global institution because the Caribbean community built it from the inside — local trust, local investment, global reach. Your client base starts with the community you already know. The referrals take you everywhere else.

CHAPTER FIVE

Getting Your First Client Without Running a Single Ad

Content builds credibility. Credibility closes clients. No ad spend required.

Colin has never run a single ad. His first clients came from LinkedIn content he started posting while he was still learning. Not polished case studies. Not testimonials. Just honest, specific posts about what he was learning — a deal he found, a card comparison he worked through, a before-and-after rewards calculation for a hypothetical business. The algorithm rewards consistency, and this niche has almost no competition on LinkedIn right now.

The Content-First Client Acquisition System

1 Post on LinkedIn once a day while you are learning

Before you have a single client, post what you are learning. A card comparison. A before-and-after rewards calculation for a hypothetical Caribbean restaurant spending $25,000/month. A deal you found on Seats.aero. A tip about sign-up bonuses. One post per day, every day. The niche has almost no voice on LinkedIn right now — your consistency alone is a differentiator.

2 Use Caribbean community groups as your warm market

Post in Caribbean business Facebook groups and WhatsApp communities: "I help Caribbean business owners optimize their card rewards strategy — most businesses I work with are leaving $500–$1,500/month on the table without knowing it. Happy to run a free 15-minute review for any business owner interested." Free review. Low barrier. High conversion to paid once they see their own numbers.

3 The founding rate for your first five clients

Charge $400–$500 for your first five engagements instead of $875. Explicitly tell them it is a founding rate in exchange for a detailed testimonial. Five testimonials at $500 is $2,500 and a credibility stack that supports full pricing from client six onward. Colin started at $75 a call. By the time he quit his job, he was charging $875 and not turning anyone away.

4 The pitch — one sentence that almost nobody refuses

"I'm going to look at what you are already spending, build you a card strategy, and help you book a trip with the points you earn. One flat fee. If I don't find you more value than I charge, you never have to use me again." That framing removes every objection before it forms. The client has nothing to lose. The math does the rest.

Your Pricing Progression

Stage	Clients	Consulting Fee	Notes
Founding	First 5	$400-$500	In exchange for detailed testimonials
Building	Clients 6-15	$650-$750	Testimonials support higher pricing
Established	Clients 16+	$875	Full market rate — not turning anyone away
Premium	Complex cases	$1,000-$1,500	Large businesses, multi-card portfolios

CARIBBEAN EARNER PRINCIPLE

Trinidad's Carnival built its global reputation one mas band, one artist, one performance at a time — long before social media existed. Your LinkedIn content builds your reputation the same way. One post at a time. Consistent. Specific. Yours.

CHAPTER SIX

Scaling — Three Income Streams From One Skill

Consulting fees. Trip research. Affiliate commissions. All from the same knowledge base.

The credit card rewards consulting business has three income streams that build on each other naturally. You do not need to pursue all three at once. But understanding how they compound is what separates a $50,000/year consultant from a $200,000/year one.

Stream One — Consulting Fees

Your core service. $875 per engagement. At two clients per week — fully achievable once your pipeline is established — that is $7,000/month from consulting alone, working roughly 20 hours. Four clients per week is $14,000/month. Colin's $231K year came from consistent volume at rates that started at $75 and grew to $875. The income compounds with your pricing, not just your volume.

Stream Two — Trip Research

$300–$500 per trip, handled largely by part-time contractors once you have the systems in place. Your consulting clients are your first trip research customers — they earn the points through your strategy and come back to you to use them. The trip research service requires almost no additional client acquisition. It comes from the clients you already have.

Stream Three — Affiliate Commissions

When you recommend a card and a client signs up through your affiliate link, you earn $300–$400 per card. A business owner following your strategy recommendation might open three or four cards. That is $900–$1,600 in affiliate income from one consulting engagement — on top of your $875 fee. Colin described it as a meaningful part of his revenue that requires zero additional work on his end.

The Income Stack at Scale

Income Stream	Volume	Monthly Income
Consulting — 8 clients/month at $875	8 sessions	$7,000
Trip research — 10 trips/month at $400 avg	10 bookings
Affiliate commissions — avg 2 cards/client	16 cards at $350 avg	$5,600
Total monthly — established business	~30 hrs/week
